Pinal County prevention and collaborative for trafficked youth

There are different ways that trafficked children are identified and connected to the services and treatment they need. At times, children and youth enter the system of care when:

- ▶ Pinal County law enforcement agencies, juvenile probation, a therapist, a forensic interviewer, the Department of Child Safety (DCS) or self-disclosure identifies a child as a sex trafficking victim
- ▶ Pinal County law enforcement agencies rescue a child during a sting operation
- ▶ Pinal County law enforcement agencies retrieve a child through a warrant or an AWOL
- ▶ A law enforcement investigation reveals a child is at high risk for trafficking
- ▶ A child returns to DCS or juvenile probation after being AWOL
- ▶ A child comes into DCS through a new investigation
- ▶ A child has a new referral to Juvenile Probation (Diversion or Investigative Case) or new information has come to light indicating the juvenile is a victim of sex trafficking

Once children and youth are identified as trafficked or potentially trafficked victims, there are steps you can take to make sure they get immediate help.

- ▶ If a child is identified by DCS or law enforcement as a potential trafficked victim and has an open report with law enforcement, law enforcement should check for an active warrant. You should also check whether the youth is involved with juvenile probation by emailing sblackbu@courts.az.gov or calling Youth Justice Center Intake at 520-866-4068. Call the Family Advocacy Center (FAC) to set up an exam for the child.
- ▶ If a child is identified by law enforcement as a potential trafficked victim, a forensic interview needs to occur at the FAC, where the child can also have their exam.
- ▶ If law enforcement is not involved and trafficking is suspected, you should call 911 to report the allegations. The 911 dispatcher will direct your call to the appropriate agency (depending on the jurisdiction). You will also need to call the FAC to request an exam for the child victim.
- ▶ You should also email Mercy Care at CSEC@mercycareaz.org with the name and date of birth of the child.

To report human trafficking, you should call 911.
